

Theresa Gifty Manu

Project/Innovation Summary

Motivation

The decision to renovate the ward stemmed from a deep desire to restore and uplift the dignity of health workers and police officers. Having personally experienced the challenges of receiving care in general wards, I was motivated to improve the quality of care, safety, and comfort for both patients and staff.

A particularly defining moment was when my own child was hospitalized. I witnessed firsthand how idle waiting created anxiety and fear, especially for young patients.

This experience inspired the idea of creating a children's playground—an engaging space to ease their worries while awaiting care. The impact has been remarkable, bringing relief to caregivers and contributing to quicker recovery for the children.

I firmly believe that a health facility should be more than just a place for treatment—it should offer a welcoming atmosphere, a healing-friendly environment, and a sense of peace. This belief continues to fuel my passion for improving healthcare spaces for all.

